3(a) Read the story below and answer the questions that follow

Many many years ago all the birds could fly. They lived and did everything together. Every morning, all the birds would wake up before dawn, sing together and then leave to look for food. This they would do the whole day and return in the evening at sunset to share what they had gathered.

However, one bird was always missing in action – the Hen. The other birds got concerned. They raised their concerns to King Eagle. All the other birds complained that the hen would not join them in their daily activities but she would be the first one to wash her hands when it was time to eat.

That evening, all the birds gathered in the palace as agreed. Hen was summoned and asked to explain why she wasn't participating in food gathering activities. Hen said that she was always falling sick. "Besides, I don't get enough when we share the food," she added arrogantly.

The other birds were shocked at her response as no one would talk to the king like this and get away with it. The eagle immediately declared that Hen and his whole family were banished from the kingdom. Owl the magician was ordered to take back the high flying powers from the hen and his family.

Hen left the village with nowhere to go. She sought refuge in man's land where man soon discovered that he would make a delicacy out of her and her entire family. From that day, Hen can no longer fly and is eaten by man more frequently than any other bird.
