3 a) Read the oral narrative below and then answer the questions that follow.

The Elegance of a Ladybird.

Long time ago lived a very beautiful lady bird whose beauty charmed all the men in the village. Her smile and angelic voice were irresistible and all men fell for her and followed like flies do to a butcher. One day as Onjiri, the insect, was grazing his goats in the village forest, he heard an angelic voice from the forest. Obviously, it was the village queen, he concluded.

Onjiri quickly came up with sweet words which he would use to convince this beauty. It had been his life time dream to one day be loved by lady bird. So, he intentionally coughed and cleared his voice to catch the attention of Ladybird.

'Who is there?' she asked. Her sweet voice made the browsing goats stop eating.

'It is I, Onjiri – the noisy insect. I heard your sweet voice sing in the forest and I am sure, all the snakes have come out of their cages. My dear, your elegance has been widely talked about- across all hills and ridges. See my goats stop browsing just to stare at you.'

'I don't believe you, Onjiri,' she shyly said while drawing the ground using her toes.

Onjiri swore to sell all his goats just to ensure that he won the heart of Ladybird. Lady bird did not hesitate to accept the lucrative offer. Onjiri later sold all his goats, married Ladybird, and promised to take her to a beautiful land for their honeymoon.

Little did Onjiri know that all these had been choreographed by both the weaver bird and the Ladybird. Ladybird was to subtly trick onjiri to believing that she was in love with him. She proposed to Onjiri to take her to mount Onyinjo. When the two got to Onyinjo, the weaver had already had his plans in place. He came at night and ate both of them. Here ends my beautiful story.
